Pep rally set Saturday

By ROGER RUSSELL
Staff Reporter

The biggest pep rally in Marshall's history is being organized for 1 p.m. Saturday, according to a Veteran's Club spokesman.

The rally is slated for the field in front of the Womens Physical Education Building. It will be held in Gullickson Hall in case of bad weather.

A combined effort of the Veterans Club, T.H.E. Group and

The Robe, the rally is being planned to help start off the 1967 basketball season and to build student spirit before Saturday's game with Morris Harvey.

The rally program will feature Mike Farrell, Huntington senior and student body president; a skit by T.H.E. Group; President Stewart H. Smith; the varsity basketball team; the band, and a fire truck.

Heads of dormitories have been asked to encourage attendance of the rally. All fraternities and sororities have been asked to put up at least one sign advertising the rally.

Leaders of the Veteran's Club, helping to organize the rally, are Garry Miller, adviser; Howard Salsite, Parkersburg freshman, president, and John Scaggs, Columbus junior, vice president. Also working with them is John Cummings, night manager of the Student Union.

Council asks faculty voice in new president selection

By ROBERT FERGUSON
Staff Reporter

The University Council, in a letter to the State Board of Education, has asked that it be involved in the process of selecting a new president for Marshall University.

The letter, addressed to Lacy I. Rice, president of the West Virginia Board of Education, said that the council, "as the highest elected representative group of the Marshall University faculty, unanimously recommends to the West Virginia Board of Education that the faculty be involved in the process of selecting a new University president."

Dr. Sam Clagg, professor of geography and chairman of the University Council, said that the faculty feels that they should have some role in the selection since they must deal with the president every day.

Another MU organization, the Alumni Association, has offered to help in the selection process. In a telegram to the state board, the Alumni Association expressed its interest and concern in the selection of a new president. The telegram also said that the alumni association would be available for consultation or recommendation.

A reply to the telegram has been received, according to Harry M. Sands, director of alumni affairs. The board stated its appreciation of the interest of the alumni association and that it would consider the offer of help when the time comes for selecting the new president.

Lonely man

COACH CHARLIE SNYDER had the look of a lonely man during the final football game of the season. It was his last game as Thundering Herd coach. Marshall lost to East Carolina 29-13, closing the season without a victory.

'67 Parents' Weekend is termed successful

By GREG CARANNANTE
Staff Reporter

"Although Parent's Weekend might have been held at an inconvenient time, it was a success because the parents that did come seemed to have a good time," said Miss Cindy Statts, Ripley senior and one of the two student co-ordinators of the November 17-19 weekend.

According to Miss Statts, there was more time allowed for the parents to be with their children, rather than having a busy schedule of activities.

Activities that were scheduled were: Guided tours of the campus; the musical, Wonderful Town; The MU-East Carolina football game; and open house for all University dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses on Sunday.

The parent's of the University's football players were special guests during the weekend, according to Mr. Harry Sands, director of development and alumni affairs.

An interview with Stan Kenton

University students 'hippest'

By SUZANNE WOOD
Staff Reporter

There's a difference between the hippies and the hip. But Stan Kenton is definitely hip.

"You university students are the hippest part of humanity," Kenton, famous jazz musician, said prior to his concert here last week.

"Am I a hippie? Well, let's say I'm a hip person," said the 45-year-old composer, pianist and arranger who has been one of the big band names since 1941.

Kenton and his band are now on a concert tour with two-thirds of their performances scheduled for universities and colleges. His program includes some of his compositions and other popular songs.

The band has a big brassy sound, the Kenton style of progressive jazz.

Talking about music fads, Kenton said there once was a time when an album could sell for five to ten years, but now "it's a hit or nothing." He has another album to be released Jan. 2.

"However, I don't agree with the people who say pop records, even by the Beatles, are trash," he continued. "They sell; they must have something."

What's going to happen to music in the future?

Jazz is already being used frequently in church services and Kenton seems to think the change is needed as well as good "although it may cause a few gray hairs."

"In the future, people will use music like food and air," said Kenton. "It will be that important to them."

He also commented that big bands will become popular again but only if they have a new exciting sound.

Jazz is the kind of music that moves from a regular beat in the direction of syncopations, but according to Kenton you don't have to be sophisticated to enjoy jazz, "just a little perceptive."

Will jazz fade away?

"Oh, no, jazz is the seed of all music," he added.

Story misleading

A story appearing in the Charleston Sunday Gazette Mail Nov. 19, was not only inaccurate, but also misleading concerning Marshall University dormitory rules and regulations.

Quoting Miss Barbara Hensley, Hinton senior, the Gazette-Mail reporter said, "Being five minutes late to class for example, will bring 24 hours confinement. If a girl is 15 minutes late, she's locked in (her dormitory room) from 7:30 p.m. Friday to 7:30 a.m. Monday."

According to Miss Hensley, she told the reporter, "Being five minutes late in coming into the dormitory will bring about such restrictions."

The restrictions brought about by infringement of rules consist of "campusing" the girls. This means that they are restricted to their rooms and that no visitors are allowed. Sometimes these restrictions last for the entire weekend.

According to Miss Hensley, in Prichard Hall the dormitory in which she lives, the doors to the individual rooms are actually locked from the inside by the girls themselves to prevent visitors from entering. However, each dormitory room can easily be opened from the inside so the girl on restriction can get out if she so desires or if an emergency arises.

She was further quoted in the Charleston paper, "I've never had it done to me, but I've locked a few others in. You're literally locked in from the outside — someone else has the key. You can only talk to your roommate and your counselor and you can only get out to go to the bathroom and the cafeteria. And you have to go to the cafeteria with your counselor — you can't even talk to anyone else."

What Miss Hensley meant, she says, was, "I've never had it done to me" (I've never been locked in), "but I've locked a few others in" (as a dorm counselor I've been responsible for seeing that doors were locked by the girls themselves), "You're literally locked in from the outside" (a misquote, what she said was, "you're literally locked in from the outside world.")

What Miss Hensley meant and what the Gazette-Mail story said were entirely different.

Whether the rules are good or bad, the fact remains that Marshall University dormitories are not prisons where girls are "locked in" to the point of no escape.

In another part of the lengthy article appearing in the Gazette, Miss Hensley is quoted as saying, "The boys have bedchecks, but after that out the windows they go."

This statement, made by Miss Hensley in reference to Hodges Hall, mens dormitory, was taken out of context according to her, and has been refuted by James R. Vander Lind, assistant dean of student affairs.

If the rest of the Gazette article is written as poorly as the section pertaining to Marshall, it is quite conceivable that a totally different picture of West Virginia's institutions of higher education and their students exists than was painted in the Sunday Gazette.

Our Man Hoppe

Elbie Jay loves dissent

Arthur Hoppe

Howdy there, folks. How y' all? Time for another chapter of The Real Great Society, that rollickin' tee-vee series featurin' the rootin'-tootin' Jay Family and starring ol' Elbie Jay — the kind of feller who never takes no for an answer. Not that he gets much opportunity.

As we join up with ol' Elbie today he and his two sidekicks Dean and Mac, are settin' in the parlor. There's some whoppin' and hollerin' goin' on outside and the three are lookin' mighty glum.

Elbie (irritably): Just you listen to those voices of dissent and disunity out there protestin' my war. For the sake of national unity, why can't they be loyal Americans and support me in my heartfelt desire to bring our boys home from Vee-yet-nayem?

Dean: What are they shouting, sir?

Elbie: As usual, they're shoutin', (he shudders) "Bring our boys home from Vee-yet-nayem."

Mac: Maybe you should make another speech, sir, outlining your wise policies and brilliant goals.

Elbie: I made 43 this week already. Each time I get up and I say in my magnanimous fashion that this here's a free country and any man's got the right to his own opinions about the war.

Dean: That's right, sir.

Elbie: 'Course, logic requires I point out that Hanoi is listenin' to every word. And anybody who says he disagrees with me is givin' aid and comfort to the enemy. Not to mention the Republicans.

Mac: That's right, sir.

Elbie: And then I wind up on a kindly note of reasonableness by puttin' the two together. Any mangy, low-down, no-good, un-American, Commie-lovin' traitor, I say reasonably, therefore has the perfect right to disagree with me. As long as he don't say so out loud.

Dean and Mac (together): That's right, sir.

Elbie: And would you believe it? Some of these polecats are goin' around sayin' I'm tryin' to stifle dissent. Me! Why, can you think of any man who loves dissent more 'n me?

Dean and Mac (together): No!

Elbie (nodding): That's a word I dearly love to hear you fellows say. If'n you fellows didn't say no to me once in a while, I might just conceivably make a mistake.

Dean and Mac (together): Impossible!

Elbie (smiling): Well, you got a right to your opinion. But, truth is, I'm not infallible. I'm only a mere mortal human bein'.

Dean and Mac (together): You're dead wrong, sir!

Elbie (beaming): And I respect you the more for your honest dissent. (frowning) But why can't all folks dissent like that? If'n they did, I'd knuckle under, admit I was wrong and change my humble opinion of myself. No sacrifice is too great, I say, for national unity.

Well, tune in again, folks. And meanwhile, as you mosey down the windin' trail of life, remember what Elbie's ol' granddaddy used to say:

"Be tolerant of your fellow man and let him have any opinion he wants. As long as it's your'n. And if'n it ain't, just let him have it."

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

We feel that a reply to Mike Farrell's views on Vietnam, as stated in Nov. 17 issue, is necessary.

Mr. Farrell was represented as saying that American soldiers in Vietnam are fighting for the rights of "voting, speaking, choosing a side in an argument, and a trial by jury . . ." If these are basic freedoms, then everyone does not have to be of the same opinion. But Farrell does not permit this freedom to adversaries of the present war.

He was quoted as saying that, "The dissenters are as guilty as any of the Viet Cong because they supply the mental ammunition that kills scores of our troops each month."

Dissention is a very healthy characteristic of a society. Chalmers E. Means, assistant professor of education, said in a letter to the editor in the same issue, "The contributions of minority groups and 'different' individuals to the development of this country and to the democratic process fill our history books. Yet, in spite of this evidence, this and other communities often perceive these people as a threat rather than as a potential strength."

In the current issue of Playboy, there is an article by John Kenneth Galbraith, one of America's foremost experts on international affairs, which in general, refutes Farrell's contentions about the war. Galbraith served as ambassador to India under the Kennedy administration. He says that this is the first military engagement since the War of 1812 to which a large segment of the population is opposed.

Some of Farrell's statements are so absurd that they do not merit refutation; however, Professor Colie has suggested a campus-wide debate on the subject in the Nov. 17 Parthenon. We feel that such a program is vital, if Marshall is to accept its role as a University.

Coeds making holiday plans at dormitories

Plans are being made by the women's dormitories for Christmas activities.

Each dormitory traditionally has a Christmas party which is usually held after closing hours near the beginning of Christmas vacation. The trees are decorated by the women. Although the dormitories have decorations for their trees, the women in West Hall bring one ornament from home. In Prichard and West Halls each presents a skit for the party. In West Hall, the counselors present one. Gifts are usually exchanged among the girls personally, although in West Hall each wing exchanges gifts. In Laidley Hall the freshmen are in charge of the party and Santa Claus attends. The women go caroling to the other dormitories, sorority and fraternity houses.

The women of West Hall are making food boxes for our men in Vietnam and helping a poor family.

A large part of Christmas in the dormitories is the contest for door decorations. Started by Laidley Hall, the women in all dormitories spend four or five hours decorating their doors. In Laidley, the contest is judged by the Art Department and has a religious and a secular section. A first and second place prize for each section is given. In Prichard Hall, the contest is judged by the house director and the dean of women for the most original and attractive door.

WMUL accepting applications now

WMUL-FM, campus radio station, is accepting applications for staff positions for second semester, according to Carla Thompson, Huntington junior and traffic director.

Positions open are program director, station manager, traffic director, popular music director, classical music director, production manager, and continuity director.

Miss Thompson added that the station also needs engineers, journalism students to write continuity, and announcers to take board shifts. The station signs off for Christmas vacation Dec. 15 and will sign on again Feb. 6.

COUNT BASIE

Tickets available tomorrow for Basie show this Monday

Count Basie and his band will appear here under the Artist Series at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the Keith Albee theatre.

During his 25 years as a bandleader, Count Basie has established himself as a modern music immortal. From a 10-piece band in 1935, he has become the leader of a musical group widely acclaimed for its style and rhythm. Mainly a jazz band, Count Basie's group has won many awards.

Besides being acclaimed as one of the best jazz bands in history, it won the Downbeat's Critics Poll Award for four consecutive years.

Basie himself has been honored also. A "Count Basie Day" was observed in 1946 in his home state of New Jersey. His popularity in Europe was so great that continual tours were played from 1958 through 1961. While in England, he played a Royal Command performance for Queen Elizabeth.

Proposal for higher education needs campaign, says Nelson

Robert R. Nelson, Cabell County member of the House of Delegates, has praised a compromise reorganization plan for higher education in West Virginia and predicts its passage during the 1968 legislative session.

The revised proposal provides a separate board of governors for Marshall, continuation of the board of governors for West Virginia University, and a board of governors for the eight state colleges. Coordination of the three boards would be vested in a board of regents which would have over-all responsibility for allocation of functions and budget planning.

Delegate Nelson said: "I am optimistic about the chances of the revised higher education plan being enacted in 1968, providing those who put the plan together are honest about their positions in support of it, and providing a massive effort is immediately undertaken by those interested in its passage."

Nelson added: "The hard core support for this measure must obviously come from higher education, involving active participation by faculty and administrative personnel, as well as on-campus students who can and should have a vital role in this important undertaking."

Hoof Beats

By TIM BUCEY
Sports Co-Editor

The Thundering Herd begins its 1967-68 basketball campaign Saturday with players, coaches and fans optimistic that the cagers will live up to their expectations for an outstanding season.

The varsity cagers, in the first full scale scrimmage of the season, beat the freshmen 101-73 at Memorial Field House last Tuesday.

Ellis Johnson, who begins his fifth season as head coach, is openly optimistic about his squad's chances for the season.

"Three boys won 20 games and finished fourth in the National Invitational Tournament last year," the coach explained, "so I can't say I don't think we're going to win. With a group like this you have to be optimistic. You have to say something nice."

Schedule Toughest Yet

This season's schedule is considered one of the toughest any Marshall cage team has faced, with nationally ranked Houston, Loyola of Chicago and the University of Toledo appearing on the schedule.

Morehead, the only team to beat the Thundering Herd twice last season, is another team which poses a threat to the cagers.

"Everybody on our schedule will be tougher than last year," coach Johnson said.

New teams added to the schedule this season are Houston and Northern Illinois. Florida State, College of Steubenville and St. Francis of Pa., Herd opponents last season, do not appear on this year's schedule.

MUI Planned

This season will also mark the first annual Marshall University Invitational Tournament.

The teams participating in the tournament and the possible pairings are — Marshall vs. University of Virginia and Bowling Green vs. Manhattan College.

The reason everyone is optimistic about Marshall's chances is that all five of last year's starters will be returning.

One problem at the beginning of last season was the lack of experience of the two sophomore starters, Jim Davidson and Dan D'Antoni.

Losses At Start Of Season

Through the first 12 games of last season, the Herd had a respectable 7-5 record, while in the second half of the season they won 11 and lost only one.

The starting five will be 6-7 George Stone, 6-3 Bob Redd, 6-9 Bob Allen, 6-3 Jim Davidson and 5-11 Dan D'Antoni.

Stone High Scorer

Stone enters the season with a two year total of 1,131 points, which ranks him twelfth on the MU all time scoring list.

The Covington, Ky., senior needs 570 points this year to put him in second place on the scoring list, and 851 to put him in first place. Walt Walowac is the highest scorer in Marshall history with 1,982 points.

Stone is the only man in the University's history to score 1,000 points in the first two seasons. He also led the conference in scoring last year with a 24.4 average. For his accomplishments Stone was named to the All-MAC first team.

Last year Bob Redd, with a 17.0 average was named to the All-MAC first team. In his sophomore season the Louisville, Ky., cager was named to the All-MAC second team as he averaged 18.0 points per game.

Redd's accomplishments are not only in scoring but he has been acclaimed as the best all-around player for the Herd.

Allen In Top 15 Rebounders

The rebounding chores, for the most part, are left to Bob Allen, who was among the top 15 in rebounding in the nation last season and was the top rebounder in the NIT. The Port Huron, Mich., senior averaged 13.8 rebounds. He was on the MAC second team.

Allen showed tremendous improvement last year. And more than doubled his number of rebounds. His sophomore season he was third on the team in rebounding behind Stone and Redd. Last year he was second in the conference.

Jim Davidson, Logan junior was second on the team in scoring in rebounding, pulling down 257 rebounds and averaging 17.1 points per game. He was also second on the team in total points with 479. He was an honorable mention All-MAC choice.

Dan D'Antoni, the junior "quarterback" from Mullens, averaged 11.8 points per game and was also named to the honorable mention All-MAC team.

Up for grabs

Varsity takes frosh, 101-73 at field house

In last weeks annual varsity-freshman basketball game the varsity showed their power by beating the freshman squad, 101-73.

The varsity jumped off to a 6-0 lead and were never behind.

"It was a typical varsity-freshman game," remarked freshman Coach Larry McKenzie. "The varsity showed the polish that they have gained from three years of varsity play. We played a good defensive game, but the press hurt us."

Coach McKenzie commented that he was pleased with his walk-ons. "We can only be as strong as our bench. I was especially pleased with (Ira) Pierce, (Rockie) Harshbarger, and (Charles) Chaney." He also said Charles Bradbury could be a starter.

Varsity Coach Ellis Johnson was also happy with the scrimmage. "We were pleased with some things, but weren't too happy about some other things." As to the team's poor shooting in the game, Johnson said the President undecided on future

By SAM NEAL
Editor-In-Chief

"I still haven't decided what I'm going to do when my resignation takes effect this summer," President Stewart H. Smith said Monday.

"We definitely want to do some traveling, and then I want to do something later on, but I don't know what it will be yet. Maybe I'll stay in Huntington, perhaps I will go some place else, it just depends on what opportunities come along," he said.

Concerning the selection of the next president for Marshall, Dr. Smith commented, "I don't want to participate in the selection of my successor, I feel it is not my prerogative to do so." "Of course," he continued, "if the Board of Education asked me to suggest a few possibilities to them, I would do that."

Asked about the rumor that Governor Hulett Smith would be the next MU president, Dr. Smith said that anyone could start a rumor and that he had heard no official word that anybody had been considered for his replacement as yet.

Turning to other topics, Dr. Smith said Monday that he had received many applications for the position of head football coach, "a surprisingly large number of candidates have sent applications to my office and I have sent them all over to Eddie Barrett who is screening them."

Concerning the selection of a new vice president of academic affairs for Marshall Dr. Smith remarked, "We are farther along than we were a month ago in filling the position." He said that he would meet tomorrow with the faculty administrative advisory committee and he may have something to announce next week.

'Honest to God' to be discussed

The Methodist Student Movement will sponsor the first in a series of studies on Bishop John A. T. Robinson's book, "Honest to God," today at 4 p.m. at the Campus Christian Center, according to Stephen Dorsey, Huntington junior and chairman of the student group.

The study will be led by Dr. Howard A. Slaate, professor of philosophy and chairman of the department; Dr. Eugene Ryan, instructor of philosophy, and Dr. Louis B. Jennings, professor of Bible and religion.

MSM will study "The Gospel according to St. John" and "The Teachings of Jesus" during second semester.

COEDS PLAN FAGUS BAZAAR

Fagus bazaar slated Friday and Saturday

The annual Fagus International Bazaar is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the TV Building (Old Music Building.)

Items from over 10 foreign countries will be sold at the bazaar by members of Fagus, senior women's honorary.

Prices range from $1 and up. Some of the foreign countries represented include Spain, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Portugal, and the Philippines.

Proceeds each year from the bazaar go to charity. Students, faculty and residents of Huntington are invited to the bazaar.

Fagus, which was begun at Marshall in 1951, sponsors the bazaar each year. The honorary is made up of twelve senior women who are recognized for their service, leadership, scholarship and character.

According to Kathy Kelly, Huntington senior and president of the organization, the members of the group have been planning the bazaar since the beginning of the school term. Cindy Staats, Ripley senior and vice president of the organization, is chairman of the bazaar.

Many unusual items will be on display, according to Miss Staats. Members of the group will be on hand to help make selections.

Advisers for Fagus include Lillian Buskirk, dean of student affairs; Mrs. Stewart H. Smith; Mrs. Louise Kirby, assistant professor of English, and Reva Belle Neely, associate professor of home economics.

Coeds dining apparel not a problem--Willis

"I'm concerned about the dress code only as it pertains to the dining halls," said Frank Willis, food service director.

He made this statement after one of the members of the Food Service Committee said the present dress code, stating coeds may not wear bermudas or slacks in the Main Dining Hall or South Dining Hall except on Friday evening and Saturday, should either be enforced or revised.

Mr. Willis said there did not seem to be a strict code in existence now on campus, but he thought maybe later, one would be established for the cafeterias.

"We're very relaxed about dress here. I don't honestly feel there is a problem," he said.

He said he did not generally object to students' appearance in the dining halls. He felt the student body had enough pride not to dress in a completely outlandish fashion.

One coed from Richmond, Va., expressed this opinion on dress in the cafeteria:

"Well, I'm old-fashioned. I happen to like girls to wear dresses in public. Where I come from you should dress for dinner."

Expressing the opposite view was a Williamson coed:

"I think girls should be allowed to wear what they like, because some girls get out of class early and change into slacks and they shouldn't have to get dressed again to eat."

All men's dorm residents to be moved to South Hall

By CLAUDE DOAK
Feature Writer

The four story South Hall addition is expected to be completed during the first part of January 1968, according to James R. Vander Lind, associate dean of students.

All of the students living in Hodges and Rowley Halls and the Fifth Avenue houses will be assigned to reside in South Hall for the Spring Semester. Moving to the new residence halls will be facilitated during the mid-semester break. The exact date will be announced at a later time.

An attempt will be made, according to Dean Vander Lind, to keep present South Hall residents, counselors and resident government intact.

South Hall at its completion will be divided into two separate dormitories, sharing the same lounges and cafeteria. The dormitories to be South West Hall (S.W.) and South East Hall (S.E.).

Room priorities will be assigned thus:

1. South Hall upperclassmen have the option of moving to the upper south west floors. Roommates preference slips must be given to Oscar Adkins, residence director of South Hall.

2. Freshmen living in South Hall will remain in the same room or on request be reassigned to random room assignment in any room in the building.

3. All other students, including those in Hodges and Rowley Halls and the Fifth Avenue houses will be randomly assigned rooms throughout the building. Roommate preference slips must be given to respective residence directors.

All room assignments made by the Housing Director are final.

A change in University policy on housing of athletes has been announced in conjunction with the move.

According to Dean Vander Lind future assignment of athletes will be to all three residence halls, South East, South West and Hodges. In so far as possible, athletes who participate in a sport that practices over a vacation period will be assigned to the same residence halls. This is to facilitate easy supervision over that period.

Athletes will be assigned roommates by the Athletic Department but room and residence hall assignments will be given by the Housing Director.

The two residence halls to be created will have separate residence directors. South East Hall will have Lowell Adkins as its residence director, and South West Hall will have Oscar Adkins as director.

All the facilities and student organizations of the present South Hall will be reassigned to South West Hall.

There will be 15 counselors in the newly created dormitories, eight in South East Hall and seven in South West Hall. There are now 19 counselors on the staff.

"This means that four counselors must be eliminated from the ranks of the counselors in Hodges and South Halls and the Fifth Avenue houses. Each must sacrifice one and one of them, two. Those who leave counselor jobs will be assured of an office assistant position at the same rate of pay," according to Dean Vander Lind.

Present South Hall counselors will be reassigned to South West Hall and others to South East Hall.

In reference to key deposits, Vander Lind said students will get the deposits back but must pay a new deposit in the new dormitory.

Features of the new residence halls include wall to wall carpeting in rooms, halls and lounge of the addition and carpeting in the halls and lounge of the old South Hall portion. Another feature is that all students will be permitted to use the two new high speed elevators.

Cross campus All MU flyers have soloed

All members of the Marshall flight program have soloed according to Capt. Charles Jarvis, coordinator of the program.

"We are one-third of the way through the program with all cadets performing very well," he added.

The five cadets, half-way through the ground instruction phase, are being prepared for the final test given by an official of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Classroom study includes meteorology, navigation and radio work. They have visited the airport facilities and seen flying procedures in use.

Dr. Hoak is named judge

Dr. Eugene Hoak, chairman of the Speech Department, is serving as judge on a panel to determine a winner for the West Virginia Speaker-of-the-Year Award.

West Virginia University's chapter of Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic honor society, is conducting the search.

The "West Virginia Speaker-of-the-Year Award" is designed to recognize and honor an outstanding West Virginian who through his, public speaking, has contributed significantly to the development and improvement of the state.

The society is now accepting and examining the credentials of effective, intelligent and responsible state speakers.
